Art in Saudi Arabia

A New Creative Economy?

Rebecca Anne Proctor, Alia Al-Senussi

Summary

This book spotlights the role that contemporary art will play in Saudi Arabia's new push for cultural diplomacy as well as sweeping reform in the country. As the Kingdom mobilises its vast resources behind the economic and social priorities of its Vision 2030 strategy and seeks new terms of engagement with the international community, art is set to take centre stage. This book looks at both the historic and contemporary contexts for this recent state-led focus on art in the Kingdom; at how its planned events and programmes stand apart, in resource, scale and ambition, from seemingly similar initiatives coming from that region; and at both the opportunities and pitfalls, not just for the burgeoning art world of Saudi Arabia, but for practitioners and professionals around the world.

Brilliant Destiny

The Age of Augustus John

David Boyd Haycock

Summary

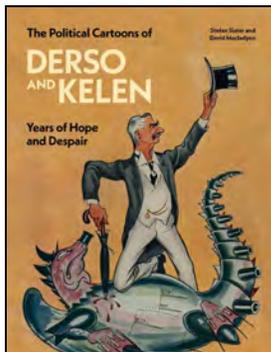

Considered by John Singer Sargent to be the best British draughtsman since the Renaissance, Augustus John was the first of the British 'Post-Impressionists'. Such was his importance that Wyndham Lewis called the ten years up to 1914 'the Augustan decade'. Virginia Woolf wrote in 1921 that 'The age of Augustus John was dawning'. Handsome, unconventional and full of brilliant promise and Bohemian spirit, John was the man almost every young British art student wanted to emulate. This book reveals why, telling his extraordinary story from his birth in south Wales in 1878 through to the end of his youth in the closing stages of the First World War. Interweaving his biography are the personalities who surrounded John, and the book looks at their influence on him, and his upon them. They include his fellow students at the Slade School of Art – his sister Gwen John and future wife Ida Nettleship, and his friends William Orpen, Ambrose McEvoy, Spencer Gore and Percy Wyndham Lewis. This bo...

The Political Cartoons of Derso and Kelen

Years of Hope and Despair

Stefan Slater, David Macfadyen

Summary

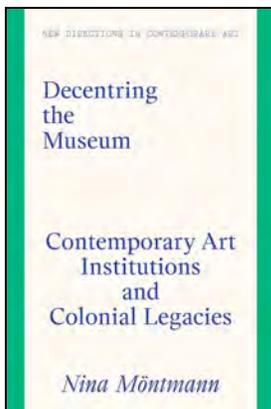

Alois Derso (1888-1964) and Emery Kelen (1896-1978) became internationally renowned for their cartoon depictions of efforts to build a better world following the establishment of the League of Nations; of the rise of fascism; and of international cooperation through the United Nations. Their sequence of cartoons, imbued with humour, wit, gentle satire, artistry and vision, captures the Zeitgeist of a period of history that resonates today. Surprisingly, no comprehensive account of their work and lives has been published before. Drawing on original research, this overdue book delves into all aspects of Derso and Kelen's careers, analysing and discussing the extraordinary political insights revealed in their cartoons. So memorable and informative are the images, it is also a useful supplement to the literature on modern history, international relations and art.

Contributor Bio

Following distinguished careers in medicine, Stefan Slater and David Macfadyen have pursued independent research around the inter-war period and the foundation of the League of Nations, which extended to the exploration of the careers of Alois Derso and Emery Kelen. Their research has been published in journals and presented at conferences. Decentering the Museum

Contemporary Art Institutions and Colonial Legacies

Nina Möntmann, Paul Goodwin

Summary

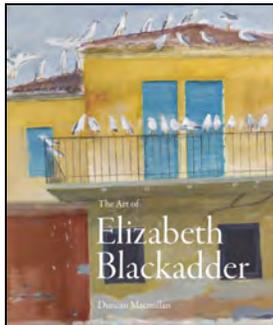

Nina Möntmann's timely book extends the decolonisation debate to the institutions of contemporary art. In a thoughtfully articulated text, illustrated with pertinent examples of best practice, she argues that museums and galleries of contemporary art have a responsibility to 'decenter' their institutions, removing from their collections, exhibition policies and infrastructures a deeply embedded Euro-centric cultural focus with roots in the history of colonialism. In this, she argues, they can learn from the example both of anthropological museums (such as the Humboldt Forum in Berlin and the British Museum), which are engaged in debates about the colonial histories of their collections, and of small-scale art spaces (such as La Colonie in Paris or Savvy Contemporary in Berlin), which have the flexibility to initiate different kinds of conversation – for example, by programming exhibitions and events in collaboration with local diasporic communities from the global south.

Contributor Bio

Nina Möntmann is Professor of Art Theory at the University of Cologne, and curator, writer and PI at the Global South Study Center (GSSC) at the University of Cologne. Her previous publications include Kunst als Sozialer Raum and the edited volumes Brave New Work: A Reader on Harun Farocki's film 'A New Product', Scandalous: A Reader on Art & Ethics, New Communities and Art and Its Institutions. Paul Goodwin is a curator, researcher and educator whose research focuses on Black British Art and African diaspora art since 1980 and transnationalism in contemporary art production. He is Professor of Contemporary Art & Urbanism and Director of the Research Centre for Transnational Art, Identity and Nation (TrAIN) at University of the Arts London.

The Art of Elizabeth Blackadder

Duncan Macmillan

Summary

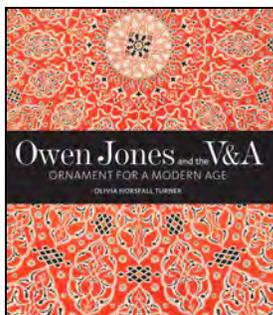

Exploring the development of Elizabeth Blackadder's art in all its richness, this revised edition of Duncan Macmillan's 1999 book expands the account of an important artist and her significant body of work. With her oeuvre ranging through still life, landscapes and flower painting, Elizabeth Blackadder (1931-2021) was one of the best known and respected artists in the British painting tradition. The first woman to be elected to both the Royal Academy and the Royal Scottish Academy, she exhibited widely from the 1960s and her work has been reproduced extensively. Updated to include new imagery, but including The Lily (1999), an original etching produced especially for the book's first edition, Duncan Macmillan's expert text is essential reading for Blackadder's legion of fans.

Contributor Bio

Duncan Macmillan is Professor Emeritus of the History of Scottish Art at the University of Edinburgh, art critic for The Scotsman and author of numerous books including widely acclaimed Scottish Art: 1460-2000 (2000) and Scotland's Shrine: The Scottish National War Memorial (2014).

Owen Jones and the V&A

Ornament for a Modern Age

Olivia Horsfall Turner

Summary

Owen Jones (1809– 1874), a prolific architect, designer, illustrator and printer, was recognised during his lifetime as one of the most influential contemporary figures in art and design theory. This insightful book, the latest in the V&A Nineteenth-Century Series, explores his relationship with the South Kensington Museum (later the Victoria and Albert Museum), from its inauguration in the 1850s through to his death in 1874. With particular focus on the creation of his celebrated volume The Grammar of Ornament (1856), his decorative scheme for the museum's so-called 'Oriental Court' and the preparation of his lesser-known publication Examples of Chinese Ornament (1867), it offers a fascinating exploration of the identity of the early museum and its imperial context.

Contributor Bio

Olivia Horsfall Turner is Senior Curator of Architecture and Design at the Victoria and Albert Museum, where she looks after the collection of design drawings which document the creative process in art, architecture and design from the fourteenth century to the present day. She also writes, lectures and broadcasts about architecture, history and ideas.

Modern Architecture in a Post-Modern Age

Elie G Haddad

Summary

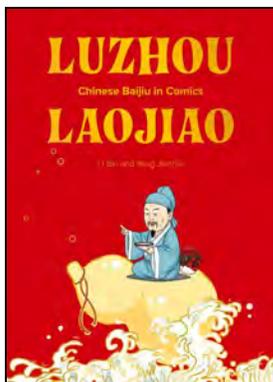

This book provides a critical survey of modern architecture from the 1960s when a new wind started to blow from within Modernism, through to the present day. Starting with a review of the transitional period of the 1960s, it explores the different paradigms, reactions and counter-reactions that have affected architectural developments and the effects of which are still felt today. Global in scope, with buildings discussed from every continent, each chapter begins with a theoretical overview of the 'paradigm' in question, leading to an examination of its main actors and projects. It concludes with a section which looks to future trends including environmental sustainability, a new aesthetic architecture which blurs into fine art, and architecture which focuses on technological innovation to develop ever more complex forms.

Contributor Bio

Elie G. Haddad is Professor of Architecture and currently Dean of the School of Architecture and Design at the Lebanese American University. Among his recent publications are Henry van de Velde on Rational Beauty, Empathy and Ornament (2022), and The Contested Territory of Architectural Theory (2022).

Tujia Paintings and Woodcarvings in Guizhou and Their Development in the Qing Dynasty

Yong Liu, Yanqin Tan

Summary

The Tujia number over 8 million people and are one of the larger ethnic minority groups in China. However, little is known about their culture – especially their paintings and woodcarvings – which are not merely ornamental but also key components of their religious practices and rituals. Accompanied by many pictures and photos, this book explores the fabulous and unique Tujia works of art from the Qing period. Author Liu Yong, who has amassed an incredible collection of Tujia artwork (some of which is shown in this book), also explores the Nuo folk religion and its intimate connection with the Tujia.

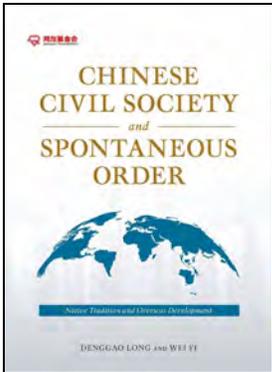

Traditionally the Tujia dwell in the Wuling Mountain area of southwestern China, on the borders of Hubei, Hunan, and Guizhou provinces. They rose to prominence during the Ming era (1368– 1644) and arguably reached their zenith during the Qing era (1644– 1911). It is hoped that through further research and understanding, invaluable Tujia customs and skillsets from previous generations will n...

Chinese Civil Society and Spontaneous Order

Native Tradition and Overseas Development

Denggao LONG, Wei YI

Summary

From native to overseas, from traditional to modern, this book explores the historical development and characteristics of traditional Chinese markets and their micro-entities. It investigates the development and evolution of factor markets and civil order, business management, and non-government organizations under the background of Chinese culture in a heterogeneous environment.

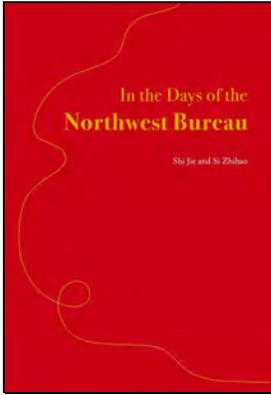

The first part of "Native Tradition" comprehensively examines the land tenure system and its transmutation and function in the context of traditional Chinese socio-economic perspectives. In the middle part of "Overseas Development," the study of native origin and overseas evolution is carried on and continued. From China to overseas, from history to reality, the management characteristics of Chinese entrepreneurs and their adaptation, choice, and growth in different environments are revealed. The third part, "Blend and Contrast," focuses on the collision and integration of modern China and the West from comp...

The Red Agate (Hindi Edition)

Zhenfu Teng

Summary

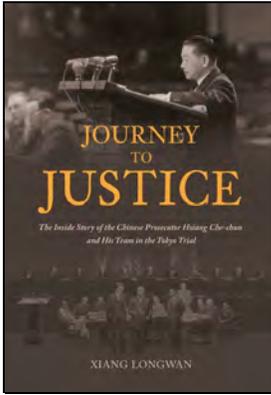

The Red Agate is a novel based on the reality of the large-scale poverty alleviation in China. An ancient village called Liucheng, which was said to be cursed by a Lama and could never be prosperous, shook off poverty through the efforts of Chen Fang, a determined and hardworking official, and several enterprising young people from this village. They tried various ways to help the villagers earn more income, such as planting apricot trees, running a small workshop to make pickles, and developing rural tourism. Although the process was full of difficulties, the villagers finally got to the way heading to a richer and better life. It is also an interesting story depicting young people's love, rural life and the collision of traditional and modern values.

The Inside Story of the Chinese Prosecutor Hsiang Che-chun and His Team in the Tokyo Trial

Longwan XIANG

Summary

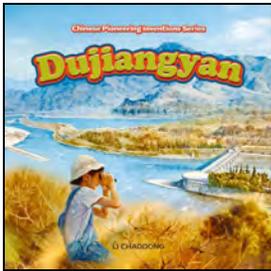

This book is mainly about the work and contributions of the Chinese prosecution team during the Tokyo Trial, which includes determining the starting date of the trial and the defendant list of war criminals, participating in drafting the Indictment, collecting evidence, inviting key witnesses to testify, giving prosecutorial statements, compiling documents, and so on. Based on citing a large number of court records, international treaties, diplomatic correspondence, media reports, and the parties' subsequent memories, the author tries to argue with evidence and explain the complicated process in a simple and crystal-clear way. It not only provides a reference for researchers but also helps general readers understand the overview and significance of the Tokyo Trial.

Contributor Bio

XIANG Longwan is a mathematics professor at Shanghai Jiao Tong University (SJTU). He was one of the founders of the Center for the Tokyo Trial Studies (CTTS) of SJTU in 2011 and has served as Honorary Director since then. He is the son of HSIANG Che-Chun, the prosecutor representing China to the International Military Tribunal for the Far East, also known as the Tokyo Trial, from 1946 to 1948. Dujiangyan

Chaodong Li

Summary

The five thousand years long magnificent history of China has made the Chinese an intelligent people that created many great world-renowned projects. Some of them survived thousands of years of changes and still benefit us today. Dujiangyan is not only a great miracle of ancient Chinese hydraulic engineering technology, but also a shining pearl among hydraulic projects around the world.

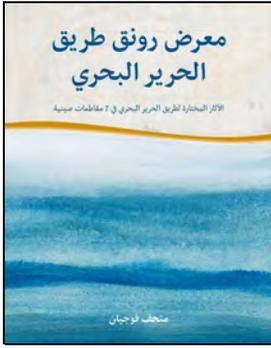

Dujiangyan describes how Li Bing, the governor of Shu County of the Qin State, led the public to build the Dujiangyan water conservancy project more than 2,000 years ago. It also explains the principle of flood control of the project through illustrations.

Leaping into the Future

China and Russia in the New World Tech-Economic Paradigm

Sergei Glazyev

Summary

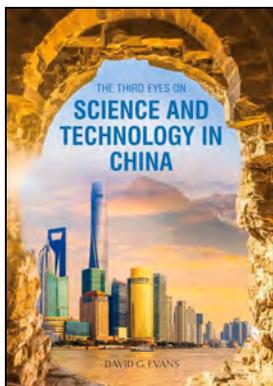

Glazyev Sergey Yuriyevich, a Ph.D. in Russian Economics and academician of the Academy of Sciences, explained in his new book that the economy is transitioning to a period of technological and world economic paradigm replacement. In his book, the author analyzed the essence of the structural changes in the global economy based on the long-term economic development law, revealed the driving mechanism of China's economic miracle, and pointed out that Russia's economic development prospects depend on national policies. Glazyev explained the reasons for the US government's domination of the global hybrid war and how to end it. The way out of the global crisis could be achieved by transitioning to a policy of new technological paradigm over-development and developing a new system of world economic structure. China and other Southeast Asian countries follow this route and have established a new center for developing the global economic paradigm. This book also analyzed in detail the ways ...

Sino-Asia Agricultural Trade and Development Cooperation

Progress, Challenges, and Outlook

Mao Rui

Summary

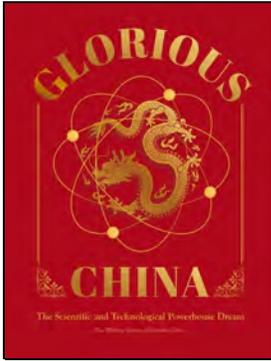

This book includes twelve chapters on agricultural trade and cooperation in Asia, which cover both the review of agricultural development in selected countries and analyses of their development linkages through trade and cooperation. Specific attention has been given to agricultural trade between China and the rest of developing Asia, as China has become the second largest country in agricultural trade, and the unique importance remains for trade partners in Asia due to geographic proximity. Following the outbreak of the COVID-19 pandemic, we also reveal how the global regime of agricultural trade and the Sino-Asia agricultural trade, in particular, has been affected. Overall, the book aims to enhance understanding of the progress, challenges, and outlooks of the Sino-Asia agricultural trade and highlight the room for further cross-country collaborations in agricultural development.

Ancient Capitals and Cities

Xiaohong Zhang, Jianxiong Ge

Summary

This book explores the importance of the capital in Chinese history as well as cities more generally. Beginning with the earliest capitals from thousands of years ago all the way to present-day Beijing, the various capital changes of China – including dual-capital systems and even five-capital regimes – are covered in impressive detail. The four ‘great capitals of China’ – Luoyang, Xi’an, Nanjing, and Beijing – receive particular attention for their central roles in the evolution of Chinese capitals.

Aside from the capitals themselves, major cities and city types are also explored at length in this volume: for example, the grass market towns of the Song Dynasty, the Silk Road hubs, and the prosperous port cities that grew in tangent with the booming maritime trade industry during the Qing period, such as Shanghai.

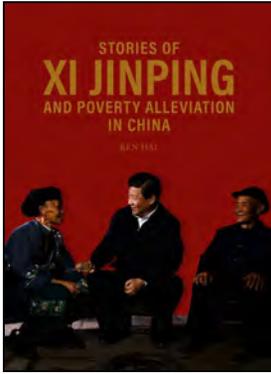

This volume covers settlement expansion and type throughout China’s history. For those who wish to learn more about Chinese cities and capitals, this book is an ideal choice...

Stories of Xi Jinping and Poverty Alleviation in China

Ren Hai N/A

Summary

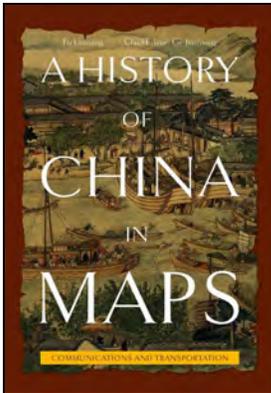

This book contains 67 well-known short stories about President Xi Jinping's thoughts and practices of poverty alleviation. These stories were arranged in chronological order, spanning half a century from 1969 to 2019. They covered almost all places in his political life— from Liangjiahe Village in Shaanxi Province, Zhengding City in Hebei Province, to Fujian Province, Zhejiang Province, and finally to China's central government. In addition, they recorded every aspect of Xi's interactions with the people in need and leading them out of poverty, including learning about the hardships in the countryside for the first time at the age of 15 when he went to live and work in Liangjiahe Village and visiting all concentrated destitute areas in China. China's poverty alleviation practices have made important contributions to achieving the goal of "no poverty," which is the first one of the sustainable development goals set by the United Nations.

Communications and Transportation

Linxiang Fu, Jianxiang Ge

Summary

This book tracks the various forms of transportation used in China, going back thousands of years to the pre-Qin period and the first known human creation of canoes. Elaborate water networks and road systems were subsequently formed as civilization advances, leading to the emergence of the Silk Road and established trade routes with Europe and the Middle East, maritime transport links to South Asia and India, and eventually extensive railroads set up across China.

As transportation methods and routes are gradually improved, communications between various regions of China – and between China and other civilizations and territories – grow exponentially, leaving an indelible mark on the countries involved. This volume records many of these communication and transportation shifts and advancements in great detail, providing readers with a comprehensive overview of how these matters developed over time and impacted society at large.

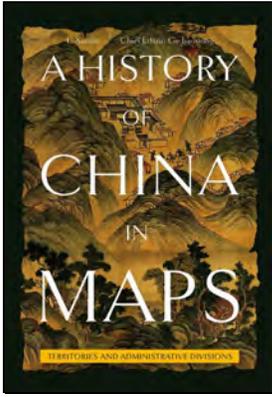

For those interested in further reading on these topics, this...

Territories and Administrative Divisions

Xiaojie Li, Jianxiang Ge

Summary

From the era of Yu the Great in time immemorial up until the Qing Dynasty of the 20th century, this volume covers thousands of years of Chinese history. Many regimes and dynasties emerged, expanded, and ultimately declined – at times causing enormous change in the territorial division and governance of this great Central and East Asian landmass.

China went through several phases of unification and part-unification as various rival groups and rulers constantly fought for greater land and resources. This book sheds light on these numerous shifts in power and territory in a largely chronological manner, giving readers a real sense of timescale and perspective when learning how the nation came about.

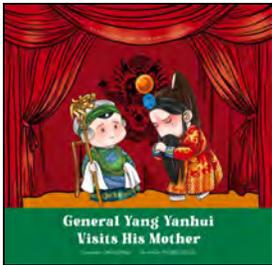

Focusing on how regimes administered and ruled their territory is also a key part of this volume. Through understanding the various changes and types of administration, it can be shown why certain practices evolved to eventually become the unified country that we know today. This attention to ad...

The Hegemon-King Bids His Lady Farewell

Peiyu Wang, Pangbudun'er

Summary

If you are looking for a cultural story of ancient China, then this fun and fascinating Peking Opera picture book can be a great start. The book uses adorable chibi-style characters that will stimulate your artistic imagination: allow yourself to be taken in by the characters' colorful makeup, costume, and dialogue, and to be immersed in this classical living art. This is definitely the best Peking Opera introductory book for kids!

First-class Peking Opera actress Wang Peiyu has worked as a consultant on this project, and presents these brilliant Chinese folktales. This rhyming interactive picture book introduces the archetypal Peking Opera play – The Hegemon-King Bids His Lady Farewell. Once upon a time, Chu and Han were at war. When the Chu army was on the verge of defeat, the Chu general, the hegemon-king, bid farewell to his lover. However, she wore an ancient Chinese costume, performed a sword dance, and expressed her willingness to live and die with her king. This book tells the h...

The Golden Happy Tree

Mei Su, Ruiling Zhang

Summary

Suzhou is a renowned city in southeast China with a rich history and culture. This five-volume mini-series brings the city to life through colorfully illustrated fairy tales. These are ideal for children who wish to learn more about certain aspects of China's vast and diverse culture.

The Golden Happy Tree is a reference to the much sought-after ginkgo tree— one of the oldest tree species in the entire world. Ginkgo nuts have been used in Chinese society for centuries; they have many functions, including those of an edible and medicinal nature. The unusual-shaped leaves also provide an aesthetic quality, especially during autumn when the ginkgo trees shed their leaves.

Le voyage de la famille Courte trompe

Sunshine Orange Group

Summary

Je suis Nuage, de la famille des éléphants à courte trompe. Ma famille est originaire de la forêt tropicale de Sipsongpanna, dans le Yunnan, et nous sommes partis vers le nord pour une randonnée de mille kilomètres couvrant la moitié de la province. Nous avons traversé des montagnes et des jungles, traversé des villages et des villes sur notre chemin. Les protecteurs des éléphants nous ont fourni de la nourriture en quantité suffisante pour notre voyage, et ils ont enregistré les moments heureux où nous avons profité de notre bain de boue, de notre fête du maïs et de notre sommeil réparateur. Nous sommes venus pour voir le monde, et le monde nous a accueillis !

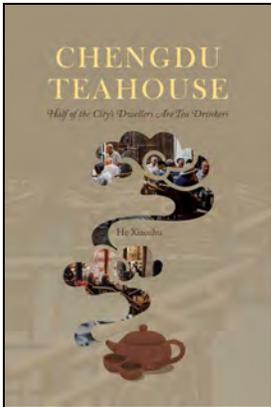

Rejoignez le Groupe des éléphants pour le voyage !

Saihanba

A Green Legend (Hindi Edition)

Yunqian Yang, Yuncong Wang

Summary

At the northernmost tip of Hebei Province, there is a dense forest – Saihanba. In the past 57 years, it has become a "natural oxygen bar," with six forest farms covering a total forested land of over 73,000 hectares, with the forest coverage rate reaching 80%. It used to be a land facing severe encroachment by drifting sand. It was the work of three generations of forest workers here.

Georg Baselitz: Peintre Graveur IV

Catalog Raisonné of the Graphic Work 1989–1992

Rainer Michael Mason, Georg Baselitz, Detlev Gretenkort

Summary

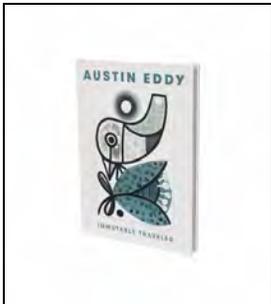

"The painting partisan"—this is the term Cornelius Tittel recently used to describe Georg Baselitz in a review (November 3, 2021) in Die Welt in connection with the major retrospective that has just opened at the Centre Pompidou. For Heiner Müller in a conversation (1991) with Alexander Kluge, "the partisan, in a modern, a technocratically defined structure, was like a dog on the highway." And it is within this outsider status that Tittel sees the artist Georg Baselitz mature over several decades into a monolith whom "the Académie des Beaux-Arts has now accepted as the sole German among its members. The sword presented to him at the formal ceremony was meant to symbolize his immortality. It was actually no longer needed though." We are pleased to announce, together with the editors Rainer Michael Mason and Detlev Gretenkort, that volume IV of the Graphic Works (1989–1992) will be published in the spring of 2022; it contains works no. 718–1010. Volume III had already established that Ge...

Austin Eddy: Immutable Traveller

Cat. Knust Kunz Gallery Editions

Austin Eddy, Ory Desau, Matthias Kunz

Summary

Austin Eddy's painterly oeuvre formulates contradictions, drawing on Cubist traditions and seeking a balance between figuration and abstraction. His figurative elements fold into nocturnal landscapes, buildings become isolated portraits of seemingly claustrophobic spaces, floating clouds resemble bulbous fingers— and all stand at once for portraits, still lifes, and landscapes. Austin Eddy's work references American modernism both formally and conceptually, yet there is something beyond that, which the artist describes as follows: "I think the paintings are constantly trying to navigate a road between reality and abstraction. I am interested in exploring the limits of how far can you stretch the conversation between the two. The paintings are rooted in real life narratives but not necessarily tied to representing the world truly. To keep them tied to the earth I try to use time. Light plays a crucial role in understanding how these images work. Not only in the sense of time of the d..."

Thierry Geoffroy / Colonel: A Propulsive Retrospective

Cat. Villa Stuck Munich

Michael Buhrs, Christian Ganzenberg, Thierry Geoffroy

Summary

FORMAT ART AWARENESS MUSCLE EMERGENCY ROOM ULTRA CONTEMPORARY BIENNALIST MOVING EXHIBITIONS CRITICAL RUN MUSÉE DU RETARD APATHY LAB EXTRACTEUR: In September 2020, the Copenhagen-based artist Thierry Geoffroy / Colonel (b. 1961 in Nancy, France) conceived THE AWARENESS MUSCLE TRAINING CENTER at Museum Villa Stuck in Munich. It was after this intensive participatory exhibition project, that the idea was born to create the first comprehensive monograph on his multi-faceted work from the last forty years. This upcoming publication comprises all his art formats, including the most prominent Emergency Room, Critical Run and Biennialist, which were realized all around the world. It also sheds light on the physical art works by Colonel, ranging from photography, moving image to painting, which are interconnected with his activities. Another element of the publication is a complete chronology, which covers Geoffroy's extensive activities until today. In well-researched texts, internati...

Robert Schad: Die Spur (The Trace)

Wulf Daseking, Martin Seidel, Robert Schad

Summary

Robert Schad had his studio in Freiburg before settling in the Département Haute-Saône and in the north of Portugal. Conceived in 2018 and erected in 2021, the latest work, DIE SPUR (The Trace), was the result of a competition for art-in-architecture for the new building of the Institute for Disease Modeling and Targeted Medicine (IMITATE), a research center for genetic engineering at the University Freiburg. On the street-facing side of the building, some forty pieces of steel are assembled into a 15 x 27 x 7 meter transversely supported airy structure that draws a line meandering in free rhythms through the space and, for all its large size and heaviness, unyieldingness and angularity of the source material, does nevertheless conjure up impressions somewhere between a plant-like natural grace, sculptural expressionist dance, and a lightning or electrical discharge. The Trace addresses the entire human being, our senses and our consciousness, which cannot be separated from internal...

Barthélemy Toguo: Faith Can Move Mountains

Cat. Villa Merkel Esslingen

Barthélemy Toguo, Andreas Baur

Summary

Barthé lé my Toguo (born 1967) has been focusing in his artistic practice on highly topical issues of identity and social belonging, like migration, flight, displacement, and the restrictions that stem from territorial borders and politics regarding sovereign rights. Against the background of his dual Cameroonian-French citizenship, he thereby explicitly adopts an anti-Eurocentric approach. He is above all concerned about the causes of ecological problems and their impact on society: drinking and industrial water shortages, maldevelopments in agriculture, the effects of climate change, corruption, armed conflicts, lack of economic development prospects, and much more. In his works – ranging from painting, drawing, sculpture, and performance to installation – he connects human concerns with nature: "What guides me is a constantly evolving aesthetic, but also a sense of ethics, which makes a difference and structures my entire approach." Published in this book are works created especial...

Anselm Reyle: Teenage Wasteland

Cat. Kunstverein Heilbronn / Kunsthalle Vogelmann

Matthia Löbke, Anselm Reyle, Larissa Kikol

Summary

Anselm Reyle is one of the internationally most renowned German artists of his generation. Born in Tübingen, he grew up in Heilbronn where he exhibited his work at Kunsthalle Vogelmann. The list of places where he has exhibited reads like a who's who of the art world: from Kunsthalle Zurich to Palazzo Grassi in Venice, from Deichtorhallen Hamburg to museums in the United States. His collaborations, such as with Dior for an exclusive series of handbags, are legendary. Anselm Reyle mixes styles, colors, and materials in a rather intriguing way, working with car paint, PVC and mirror film, spray paint, LED lights, concrete, and clay. Found objects as source material tend to play a prominent role in his work; these may be elements from works by other artists, as well as everyday objects, architecture, or design objects. This approach to his own work as reflection, appropriation, rephrasing and reformulation is thus made visible and addressed time and again. The viewers get caught up in t...

Matthia Löbke (born 1963) is artistic director of the Kunstverein Heilbronn, is curator and publishes monographic catalogs, among others to Carina Brandes, Natalie Czech, Katja Davar, Olaf Metzger, Carl Ostendarp, Michael Venezia, Silke Wagner. She did her doctorate on Dan Flavin and did the office in Cologne for Donald Judd until his death. Anselm Reyle was born in Tübingen in 1970. His father was a doctor, his mother a painter, and both espoused the political ideals of the '68 generation. The young artist grew up with his younger brother Georg in Heilbronn. About his upbringing he said: » I always tried to negate the good taste I was taught.« Reyle, who changed schools ten times in ten years and founded a punk band during his school years, managed to graduate from Highschool with diffic...

World Out Of Joint

Cat. Kunst Museum Winterthur

Konrad Bitterli, Lynn Kost

Summary

Since the 1960s, the installation has developed into an essential form of art. It confronts the audience with an abundance of information and a range of simultaneous events that constantly challenge the receptivity – an omnipresent condition in today's knowledge society. In spatial installations, classical art forms are hardly encountered anymore; they are presented mainly with everyday objects, ready-mades and new media. The spectators find themselves in the middle of the work, all senses are addressed and especially film, video, light, sound, and smells expand the usual aesthetic experience into a holistic experience. Inner density is generated continuously by arranging the numerous impressions subjectively and assembling them situationally. Through the use of new digital media, installations have gained additional complexity. The clear demarcation between artwork and audience disintegrates in favour of multimedia spaces in which the world virtually seems out of joint. The publicati...

Dóra Maurer: See like this and see differently

Cat. Kunsthalle Bielefeld

Zsuzsa László, Henrike Mund, Dóra Maurer, Christina Végh

Summary

Dóra Maurer (born 1937, lives in Budapest) is considered a prominent figure on the Hungarian neo-avant-garde scene. She is one of the artists who have been taking progressive paths outside of Hungary's official state cultural policies since the 1960s. Her work in the mediums of print making, photographs, film, performance art, and painting features a conceptual approach. Major aspects are perception, movement, displacement, and transformation. In the early years of West-Germany, abstract art was introduced as a political new beginning in that it represented the so-called open society. Accordingly, numerous collections in German museums are oriented toward this, including the one at the Kunsthalle Bielefeld, whose building was designed by the US-American architect Philip Johnson. While abstract art in the West was considered "free of ideologies" and instrumentalized as such, abstraction in countries such as Hungary, which was part of the Eastern bloc at the time, certainly had an " ...

Zeitmaschine Balthus

Cat. CFA Contemporary Fine Arts Berlin

Tom McGrath, Dana Žaja, Marcus Woller, Jörg Heiser, Bruno Brunnet, Nicole Hackert, Roberto Ohrt

Summary

The collection was not intended as such at the beginning. It was about engaging with and surrounding oneself with the unknown, the incomprehensible. It was about the fascination of imagination and bringing this fascination into one's own home, surrounding oneself with it, in order to remain aware of the constant stimulus of life. The collector has brought in the depths of the unconscious, of philosophy, of painting technique, and he has brought the wild and bustling Berlin into his own contemplative four walls. This collection also tells a contemporary story. It tells of a Berlin of the 90s and 00s in which so much was possible because there were large spaces for little money. The collection also tells us about backyard galleries, improvised project spaces that later became institutions and about "Club Berlin", which brought together parties with art, techno with politics.

Dark Matter. Thomas Ruff & James Welling

Cat. Kunsthalle Bielefeld

Stefan Gronert, James Welling, Robert Slifkin, Thomas Ruff, Christina Végh

Summary

Thomas Ruff (born 1958) and James Welling (born 1951) are two of the most well-known photographic artists of the present day. They explore in their works the conditions of visual perception, also in relation to our use of the photographic apparatus, and the conditioning of our view of the world through photographic images. The exhibition "Dark Matter. Thomas Ruff and James Welling" and the accompanying catalog of the same name focus on works that wrest new possibilities from the photographic image and expand our capacity for imagination. We perceive our environment subjectively; we see and feel it against the backdrop of what we can grasp and understand in images and words that have been handed to us. About eighty percent of the matter in the universe consists of a substance we know little about: Dark Matter. Does the same apply to the photographic image? Does it hide more than it shows?

Contributor Bio

Stefan Gronert (born 1964) art historian, is considered one of the most renowned photo theorists and curators in Europe. He accompanied the furious rise of the Düsseldorf Becher School early on as a volunteer at the Kunstmuseum Bonn (1993), exhibited them, and published widely on it (including 2009 the huge volume Die Düsseldorfer Photoschule, Schirmer/Mosel, Munich). In addition, he has published amongst others on Rieke Dijkstra, Sigmar Polke, Gerhard Richter, Jeff Wall, and recently on Fiona Tan. Since 2016 he is curator for photography and media art at the Sprengel Museum Hannover. James Welling (born 1951) is an American artist, photographer and educator living in New York City.
